ASK YOURSELF:

Do you often miss work, or arrive late because you are involved with rendering care to an elderly spouse, parent, or loved one?

Are you physically and emotionally drained due to ongoing demands of caring for an elderly spouse, parent, or loved one?

Are frequent hospital visits by your elderly loved one causing you great distress?

Do you fear leaving your home for extended periods of time because your loved one may wander aimlessly into your neighborhood, not knowing how to return home?

Are you unable to go on vacations, or spend time away from home because there is no one available to care for your elderly loved one?

Did you answer "yes" to any of the questions above?
